A GENEALOGY OF

JOSEPH SHELTON.

Born at Suffield, Connecticut, 1751.

PREFACE.

This compilation of Sheldon Genealogy treats mainly of the descendants of Joseph Sheldon, born in Suffield, Connecticut, in 1751. The brief sketch of his progenitors, and also that of his brothers and sisters, herein given, is derived mostly from the compilation of Sheldon genealogy by Rev. Henry O. Sheldon of Ohio, who gave much of his time for forty or more years in canvassing and correspondence to compiling a genealogy of all the Sheldons found in this country, tracing them back to three brothers, Isaac, John and (William ?).

A sentence is here due and gratefully given to the memory of Rev. Henry O. Sheldon for his arduous and painstaking work in compiling and preserving a history of Sheldon early settlers in this country. He was a descendant of John, one of the three brothers above mentioned and was born September 8, 1799 at Hartford, Connecticut. He moved with his father, first to Cayuga County, New York, second to Huron County, Ohio. He was a Methodist preacher for sixty-three years, - had a classical education, - lived in several towns in Ohio, but longest at Berea, - was for a number of years Secretary of North Ohio Conference, and was the founder of Norwalk Seminary. He died in Oberlin, Ohio, in 1883, and was buried there. Age 84.

Benjamin Sheldon, grandson of the Benjamin who was an own brother of the aforesaid Joseph, and who now lives (1901) in the house built by his grandfather on the old original Capt. Jonathan purchase, in West Suffield, Conn., has also given valuable aid in compiling this genealogy.

It appears that very little is known of the aforesaid three brothers, but Sheldon is undoubtedly an English name, and Joseph, above mentioned, was a lineal descendant of Isaac.

The names underscored in the following list are the lineal progenitors of the branch of the Sheldon family herein considered.

1. ISAAC SHELDON (1st.) had two sons, John and Isaac.
2. ISAAC SHELDON, (2d.) was born in Dorchester, Massachusetts, about 1629 and died in 1708. As a small boy he went from Dorchester, Mass. to Windsor, Conn. He married, first, Mary Woodford, by whom he had twelve children, viz: Mary, Isaac, John, Thomas, Ruth and Thankful (twins), Mindwell, Joseph, Hannah, Eleazer, Samuel and Ebenezer. In 1654, the year in which his first child was born, he moved from Windsor, Conn. to Northampton, Mass.. His wife Mary died in 1681. He married, second, Mrs. Mehitable Ensign, who died in 1720, by whom he had two children, Mercy, who was born and died in 1684, and Jonathan, born 1687.
3. (CAPTAIN) JONATHAN SHELDON, born in 1687, married Mary Southwell and removed from Northampton, Mass. to West Suffield, Conn., about the year 1722 or 1723, where he bought a large tract of land whereon he lived and later settled five of his sons, viz: Daniel, Gersham, Elijah, Jonathan and Phineas, building for each a house and barn. A large part of said land is still (1901) owned by his lineal descendants. They had ten children, Mehitable, Jonathan, Rebecca, Daniel, Phineas, Elijah, Silence, Asa, Gersham and Mary. He died in 1769, aged 82.
4. PHINEAS SHELDON (Esquire), born in 1717, at West Suffield, Conn. He married, first, Deborah Hathaway, June 7, 1743, at West Suffield, by whom he had five children. Her children were:

It was at the home of one Cephas Kent, in Dorset, Vt., that the famous first meeting of the famous Council of Safety was held. It was also there, in September 1776, that the resolution was taken to declare Vermont a separate and independent district, in opposition to the rival claims of New Hampshire and New York, and there at his home its first local government was organized.

Joseph Sheldon of this genealogy (No. 6) was of slender build but men priding themselves on their strength were often surprised to find him outlifting them. Wrestling was the athletic sport of the day. Seldom a house-raising or military training day that a match was not made up for public entertainment. On one occasion, while on a visit to his brother Oliver at Burlington, Vermont, he attended a large gathering for wrestling. Burlington had sent out a challenge for anyone to meet their champion. One man was apparently the champion, as he threw all who were willing to enter the lists. Joseph being called for, entered the ring and threw him, supposing that he had thrown the champion of that locality, but the real champion had been held in reserve. He was a man that weighed over 200 pounds and was very agile, while Joseph was so slim that he, in after years, confessed himself "ashamed of his legs, they were so small". After nearly an hour's tussle the large man said to him "I dont think you can throw me, and I dont seem to succeed in my effort to throw you. I move that we quit." - and they did so.

When about 24 years old he married and settled in Fair Haven, Vermont, but refused to further engage in wrestling sports, but finally, it having been noised abroad that an expert wrestler had come to town, he consented to take hold on condition that they would bring forward their best man and excuse him from further contest. It was the first Tuesday in June, Vermont's legal militia training day. They agreed to his proposition and chose Abram Sharp, a heavy but nimble man, as their best wrestler. The contest lasted less than one minute as Sheldon threw Sharp at the second pass made at him.

He was also quite an inventor. Among other things he planned and built two mills for sawing lumber and a mill for hulling clover seed, on his waterfall, with many ingenious contrivances not then used in other mills, such as a "Bull Wheel" for hauling logs into the mill, operated by a lever attachment to saw gate, also a gidding device by which the carriage was quickly and automatically returned after the saw had passed through the log. Many other ingenious, labor saving devices made by him might be enumerated. His good judgment and clear intellect remained with him to his dying day at 81 years. His wife, Diadema, died June 29, 1846 and he married, second, Rachel Preston, sister of Diadema, Feb. 5, 1847, who died June 8, 1873. He died at Fair Haven, Vermont, Sept. 29, 1857 and was buried in West Street Cemetery in Fair Haven.

7. OLIVER SHELDON, b. Jan. 14, 1779, m. first, Zeruah Field, who died June 27, 1805, a few months after marriage. He married, second, Phoebe Richardson, March 4, 1806, who was born June 18, 1785.
